Environment Climate Hope

Sing to the LORD with grateful praise; make music to our God on the harp.
Psalm 147:7

The overwhelming emotion after the Environment Climate Hope Day on Saturday 11 September was one of gratitude. The weather was perfect, and the contingency plans in case of rain were not required.

The All Saints congregation came out tops, with the many volunteers taking up whatever role had been allocated to them with great good humour and willingness, and with many putting in very long hours.

The generosity for which All Saints is renowned was evident in the many donations of cakes, plants and produce.

The very attractive publicity before the event, and its proliferation on social media ensured that there was a steady stream of visitors throughout the day.

The refreshments were delicious and were lovingly prepared and served. The theme of sunflowers in the beautiful floral displays underlined the message of hope.

Piano music made the church come alive.

The speakers gave freely of their time and expertise, and the stall holders were meticulous in their preparation and in the presentation of the important information they shared with us. An added bonus was the poetry reading and the young busker.

While the need for action over the climate was not glossed over, our local environment was very much celebrated, and hope won the day! Thank you everyone!

Although not run as a fundraiser, the event also resulted in the church receiving a much needed £1194 with a further £167 going to various charities.
